Go Global

Did you know?

Global Competence is a must-have ability for today's students because employers want and need to hire employees with knowledge of the world and the skills and dispositions to engage with people from many cultures and countries. Whether students want to work out of the country or for an international company in the United States, having a global mindset is essential to their success. While study abroad is one of the best ways to develop an international mindset, staying abreast of world affairs, learning a foreign language and participating in global organizations will help students prepare to compete and cooperate in a global workplace. To get your students thinking about what it takes to work abroad, try this Go Global activity.

Do this...

- Ask them:
 - Why would you consider getting a job abroad?
 - What country would you like to work or study in? Why?
 - What special skills qualify you to work internationally?
- View video.
- Distribute Student Activity, review directions and complete.
- Brainstorm ways students can develop global mindset.

Get Real...

Saturday March 10th is National Passport Day. If your students don't have a passport, encourage them to learn what they need to do to get one. This pocket-sized document is their key to the world and once they have theirs they will be prepared to travel the world at a minute's notice.
